"Serving Pinellas County Veterinarians over 60 Years"

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Dear Colleagues,
As usual the recent Bowser Ball was an incredible gathering of many from our local community. It was wonderful seeing members or our profession together, laughing, sharing stories, catching up and looking their best. Along with them, so many friends of our community, both professional and personal. It goes to show how interconnected we are that we have relationships with other communities and organizations that span decades. If you need evidence of how wide reaching your influence is on a daily basis, see the next generation of professionals joining and learning from us, the next generation of pet owners learning and coming to you for your wisdom and guidance.

Our footprint on the world around us is often much larger than we expect. Because of that I hope each of you this holiday season is thankful for those that help us each day to make a difference. Those in your personal life that help you to unpack a difficult emotional day, those that make you laugh when you have a dark moment or question your choices, those heroes that work beside you in the trenches changing the lives of each and every pet and owner you help. We are all so connected and I am truly thankful to be a small part of this incredible group. Thank you all for making the world better in every small way and for being part of our community and family.

Sincerely,
Kevin Kelley, DVM – PCVMA, President, 2026-2027

PINELLAS COUNTY ANIMAL SERVICES

Celebrating 37 Years of Service: Sandra Singletary

After 37 remarkable years with Pinellas County Animal Services, Sandra Singletary will retire on December 4, 2026, leaving behind a legacy of leadership, compassion, and dedication to both animals and people.

Sandi began her career in 1989 as an Animal Care Assistant, at a time when Animal Services didn't even have a dedicated Customer Service Department. Recognizing the need, she helped establish one—and eventually became the manager of the very department she helped create.

Throughout her career, Sandi has been much more than a manager. She is a mentor, a problem-solver, and a true friend to those fortunate enough to work alongside her. She celebrates her team's successes, supports them through challenges, and isn't afraid to offer a little tough love when needed. Her ability to lead with both strength and heart has made a lasting impression on generations of employees.

Please join us in celebrating Sandi's extraordinary career and wishing her every happiness in her well-deserved retirement! Those wishing to send Sandi a personal note or share a favorite memory are welcome to email her at ssingletary@pinellas.gov.

Sandra and Isaiah Singletary enjoying the Bowser Ball on October 24, 2026. The couple had even more reason to celebrate when they were announced as one of the lucky winners of a cruise generously sponsored by Antech!
CONGRATULATIONS!

PRACTICE/OFFICE MANAGERS

Dr. Kathy's Veterinary Care

The kind of person who will thrive here
You back yourself, but you don't need to pretend you know everything.
You've held a nervous dog for a blood draw and sat down with the month's numbers.
Think You Could Build a $3M Vet Practice? Prove It Here.
I'm looking for someone who knows what good veterinary practice looks like from both sides.
You've worked on the floor. You understand the numbers. You've probably spent years looking at things in a practice and thinking, "I'd do that differently."
Here's your chance.
Dr. Kathy's Veterinary Care, Inc is a one doctor practice in Largo, Florida. The goal is to grow it into a three-doctor practice doing around $3M a year.
If you want a finished system to follow, this probably isn't the role for you.
Here, you'd help build it.
Why this role exists
We've got something good now, and I don't want growth to wreck it.
Clients aren't rushed out the door. We know their pets, their history and how they like to be handled.
Your job is to help us keep that feeling while building the systems, team and client growth that take us from one doctor to three.
As the practice grows, your role grows with it.
The long-term goal is for you to oversee the day-to-day operation of the practice while I stay focused on the clinical side and where we're heading next.
What that looks like in real life
In the quiet hours between appointments, you'll be building.

That might mean putting together a tested plan to increase new clients per month by 50%. It might mean reviewing our fees, fixing a broken process, training someone properly or working out what must happen before the next doctor comes on.
Then you put it in place, measure what happened and move on to the next problem.
You're probably a CVT, or you've built strong experience working your way up through veterinary practice.
You don't wait around for someone else to solve obvious problems. You think, test, build and improve.
What growth can look like here
In my last practice, one of the most important people in the business started as a kennel hand.
Over time, he learned the operation, took on more responsibility and became my right hand in the practice.
That's how I think about this role too.
I'm not looking for someone to stay inside a narrow job description. If you can build, lead and improve the business, there's room for this role to become much bigger.
The reality of the role
No after hours and no weekends.
Early on, you'll answer phones and help the doctor as often as you work on the bigger plan.
If answering the phone or cleaning a cage feels beneath you, this won't work.
And if you're looking to walk in on top dollar before you've shown what you can build, this probably isn't the role for you either.
The opportunity is to prove what you can do, grow the practice, and have your responsibility and financial upside grow with the results.
Money
Starting salary: $50,000
We'll review it every six months against the results you're helping create, not just how long you've been here.
Once practice profit reaches $100,000 annually, profit share kicks in at an agreed level.
If you help build a bigger, stronger practice, your financial upside should grow with it.
Let's keep this simple
No resume needed to start the conversation.
